

Title: A question / theory regarding the Shareholder meeting today!

Author: FenixMik

Created 2022-06-02 18:32:11 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/v3fjnt/a_question_theory_regarding_the_shareholder/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/v3fjnt/a_question_theory_regarding_the_shareholder/

So my knowledge on short positions / calls and so on is incredibly limited, and I was wondering if some wrinkle brain ape could clarify; If the stock split happens and a hedge fund has a short position against the stock, and the price subsequently gets divided by the split number, would this benefit the hedgies? What I mean is if they said "It will be $10 by this date" and a stock split makes that happen? Or is there some form of rebalancing to short positions?

If its the first one, it speaks volumes to why they haven't pulled the trigger, as it would just play right into their hands and give them an enourmous amount of capital right?

I could be way off the mark, but hoping someone can enlighten me!

DRS / HODL / STRAP IN / Buy GME (Not financial advice) - o7