So I voted. As I think about it somebody please explain benefit to a split? If a Co. Release more shares 4/1 for easy math and the price is 100 a share, it then becomes 25 a share correct? Or say 5/1 becomes 20 a share. Now it's post to be so price is more manageable for other investors to afford correct? So as far as new investors y would they want to invest? Either you know about the CO. And have already invested everything or your new and have all the MSM and Motley fool and others saying bad investment now they see the new price at 20 a share their gonna believe the media. Now I get the fact their will be more shares they will need to come up with. But while we have the float in DRS adding more shares to the mix isn't that just giving more ways to kick the can? If the can manipulate stock from 250 down to 70 what's to stop them from getting it from 20 to 5? I'm just curious on how this helps the process. Just seems like we're better off DRS what little shares are out their than to add millions more that will need to DRS? just a curious slow brain. Watching volume 2 million a day to 13 million going to 140 then back to 114 seemed like they are controlling the price. Most likely back to 100 tomorrow. GME is shorted to oblivion not sure how giving the hedges more ammo is a good thing.
