I like how:

A) It's THE ONE STONK TO AVOID, NO MATTER WHAT!

B) The article is an hour old, but the cutoff on their graph ends at one of the lower closes we've had for a minute, and doesn't show the nice gains from yesterday and the strong start from today, leading to:

C) "investors may want to consider avoiding GameStop regardless of what happens."

If I wasn't a believer in FUD before, I'm definitely starting to come around.
