Fellow apes, I have just learned something that I did not know before and through this way, I am trying to inform some of you too.

I just had a phone call with a very nice CS employee. I had initially called CS to ask for the tracking number of my first letter, which I had expedited. During the conversation, the employee let me know that he can in fact give me my account holder number via phone. For this to be possible, a few conditions must be met:

- * you must verify yourself using name and adress
- * you must only have GameStop shares at CS
- * you must have at most 10 shares at CS
- * you must verify the number of shares that you used to open your account at CS

I currently do not know whether you have to pay the express fee for this too be possible! But asking them politely is of course free.

I hope this is not old news. At least, I was not able to find anything relevant.
