Looking at the total lack of GME shares available to borrow and the high rates they offer to borrow ANY share I can only come to one conclusion.

The institutional investors, Blackrock, Vanguard, etc. recalled their shares to have it in their possession on dividend record date.

The SHFs already gave them everything they could borrow and still needs more.

From the lack of green price candles on the 1 second chart it looks clear that they are internalizing most buy orders and selling IOUs. IOUs will not get a share split dividend, but only a cash payment in lieu of a dividend.

THE SHORTAGE WILL ONLY LAST UNTIL THE DIVIDEND RECORD DATE. After that date they may borrow all the shares from the institutional investors again, crash the price and continue to kick the can down the road.

DRSing NOW will put immense pressure on share availability as they:

1. Cannot lend out your IOUs any longer.
2. Must find real shares to send to Computershare.
3. Have less shares to give to institutional holders.

If they have to choose between pissing off institutional investors or retail, guess who's going to end up with the short end of the stick. If I can force them to piss off institutional investors, by DRSing, and protecting myself, I think it's an excellent play.

This is not advice, you must do your own DD and do what is best for you to protect yourself.

I have not DRS'd all my shares yet, but plan to do so first thing Tuesday morning. If you think I have it all wrong please comment. I would like to see all viewpoints before I make a final DRS Tuesday morning.
