I like this movement a lot. And the bitcoin movement. Both emphasize personal ownership and a system not based on corruption. One of my concerns though with the gme movement in particular is when the boom hits where will this money come from that we expect them to pay us? With the US probably heading towards bankruptcy like China where would this money come from? I know China just had a bank run which left a lot of people with nothing. So if we all do become million billionaires where would they find this money at? Genuinely curious as I own 8 shares of gme. Bitcoin doesn't have to worry about this because it is its own system that can be used as a money. But GameStop I'm not sure where this money will come from. Either way I'll hold my shares just to screw the hedgies.
