

Title: Freetrade updating T&C's. Something or nothing?

Author: antbrad

Created 2022-01-25 09:57:22 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/sca6xf/freetrade_updating_tcs_something_or_nothing/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/sca6xf/freetrade_updating_tcs_something_or_nothing/

Hi, received an Email this morning from Freetrade, where I have a few shares of GME, saying they are updating T&C's and one part it possibly may mean something big happening. Possibly/probably nothing though.

We've added wording explaining that we may hold funds you deposit with us in bank accounts with a notice period of up to 95 days. You can find more information on what this means on our website here.

Which led to this :-

We may place a proportion of user funds into notice accounts

Placing some of the money you have with us into notice accounts will not impact your ability to deal with or withdraw funds from your Freetrade account. When you put money into your Freetrade account, you will be able to invest that same amount immediately.

Any funds placed in these deposit accounts are covered under the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS). The balance of funds in these accounts will be actively monitored and adjusted so as to not impact your day to day activity.

This does mean, in the unlikely event of Freetrade failing, it may take a little longer to return all of your funds.

So, does this mean anything? If it's nothing, I'm sorry to have wasted your time, but some of you guys are geniuses who may be able to read between the lines.