Caveat: I'm about as smooth as they come. I'm just over here brain farting in shit soup that floats around in my head.

Have we thought about creating our own website/messaging board to keep moral high during the blackouts that will no doubt continue as the stakes are raised.

It's a simple concept in my simple mind however I am fully admitting I wouldn't know where to start with the project.

Someone feel free to grab the horns and start running.

The idea would be using Reddit usernames that are currently attached to the DRS bot to try and dash the shills.

For those individuals not DRSeD for individual reasons and investment choices, a basic vetting of their current Reddit karmas and activities could do the trick?

I'm here for memes, TLDRs and your thoughts.
