I just called CS to request express delivery for my verification code letter so I can send more of my GME there to DRS. I actually called twice because I fucked up my call the first time. But when I called for the second time, I went through the complete verification process up until my credit card information. Where after saying all the numbers, CS tells me it's a debit card and not a credit card.

If I am this retarded, how can SHF even for a minute think that I would have the ability to share my sells?
