Advice wanted.

I want to buy more GME, a lot more. but any shares that I buy now will be new to me (the 18th has passed) so none of them will split.

My concern is that a share I buy today for around 150 will be worth around 40 in a few days.

Thoughts on this?

In more detail, to make the numbers easy, if 1 share is worth 160 today, then splits in 4, at split time each share should be worth 40, right?

If that is the case, then if I but one today for 160, then on split day I would lose 120 per share?

This has me thinking that at this point I should wait until the split actually happens, and the shares get their new value, and then I should buy at 40 each right?

Is my logic off? Am I figuring this out wrong?

Any advice would be appreciated!
