

Title: Dark pool % could go back up, and why that's a good thing

Author: The_Cyborganizer

Created 2021-09-20 04:15:47 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/prnfdu/dark_pool_could_go_back_up_and_why_thats_a_good/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/prnfdu/dark_pool_could_go_back_up_and_why_thats_a_good/

I've seen a lot of people pointing out that the percentage of trades taking place in dark pools is decreasing and celebrating, but so far haven't seen anyone mention that it could go back up. As real shares exit the DTCC and stop trading, a higher percentage of the trades happening will be synthetics, whiiiiiiich mostly trade in dark pools. Even though the overall number of trades happening in dark pools is less, it'll be a higher percentage of daily trades as real shares dry up. Don't get discouraged if it goes back up!