So the following is my content submitted to The Foolish Investors via their contact page. More for kicks, but has anyone else asked them about this and received an answer? Names and links butchered/removed to help this actually post (originally tried SS but forgot I had not enough -BANNED WORD- to post - copy pasta-ed).

"I am enquiring as to why the Foolish Investors publishes articles containing a disclosure of "No Position" at the bottom of its writing when there is a clear ownership in this stock on the most recent 13F filings (13F-HR 2022-03-31 - reported on 2022-05-04). This ownership stated includes 4,150% increase from a position of 36 to 1,530. There is a more clear disclosure on stocks such as Amazon wherein some form of holdings are written. Clarification would be appreciated.

Of note the article found at -GME Stock Split Article from 03/31/22- was published on the same date that the 13F filing is through AND the article found at -Round Up article including GME published on 04-01-22- fails to mention holdings in GameStop Corp. Additionally, the articles -GME stock split article from 03-31-22- and -GME popped this morning article from 04-01-22- published on 2022-03-31 and 2022-04-01, respectively, both explicitly talk about GameStop Corp and contain the line "The Foolish Investors has no position in any of the stocks mentioned."

As previously stated, any clarification as to this direct lie perpetrated to both your free and paid viewing base would be greatly appreciated."
