

Title: What's your guy's thoughts on the upcoming bond market squeeze?

Author: [deleted]

Created 2021-05-28 02:44:44 UTC

Permalink: /r/ratioatblessons/comments/nmnzuz/whats_your_guys_thoughts_on_the_upcoming_bond/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/ratioatblessons/comments/nmnzuz/whats_your_guys_thoughts_on_the_upcoming_bond/

Is_self: True

Body:

TLT is showing all the good signs of being at its bottom.

It looks like a textbook example using the Wyckoff method with upper resistance at ~$141 and primed for a big breakout.

I'm relatively new to trading and have been learning a lot over this past year, curious to see if some of you more wrinkle brained seasoned vet investors have any thoughts on it or what possible price targets should be considered?

I love the book suggestions/learning opportunities you guys throw out there btw. Looking forward to making some more tendies and growing a few more wrinkles with y'all ■■■■

Edit: not FUD to take away from GME, I'm still holding like a motherfuck. I just need a damn break from looking at it and talking about it.