I have always used limit orders to buy any stock including GME (the price hit my $96 GTC limit order this morning yey sweet dippin!!). I've seen a couple of times that limit order buying is a show of hand to hedgeie fuks but I don't get how. If anything I figure it just reminds them there's so much interest in the stock that they'll never be able to drive it out of business no matter how often they kick the can. Should I cancel my other limit orders?
