I think Ryan Cohen's latest aromatic tweets imply that the new NFT marketplace will be inherently superior because it has no need for a gas fee. Normal crypto uses a ton of energy to maintain forever and gas fees pay for this energy usage.

I have a degree in Environmental Science and I've seen some shit lol. This seems like a huge deal to me, big as Tesla and Marijuana stonks. The status quo likes to leave things as they are but Ryan Cohen is gonna pull the rug on web 1.0.

From what I understand L2 will obviously use some electricity but it is greatly diminished compared to L1 and any greenhouse gasses will be offset. L2 is wayyy more efficient and barely uses any electricity. I'm smooth brained but I know 1 banana is less than banana tree.
