

Title: E-Toro is a Product of Susquehanna

Author: Kidnap

Created 2021-10-04 00:04:39 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/q0u1su/etoro_is_a_product_of_susquehanna/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/q0u1su/etoro_is_a_product_of_susquehanna/

This'll be short! Feel free to delete if peeps are aware of this (found it myself and haven't seen anyone else acknowledge it; yes I have brought it up before... albeit not as the sole subject of the post, but it was in my first DDizzle).

Proof? Here & here

SGEP.com = Susquehanna Growth Equity Portfolio . Semen

Here's Susquehanna's current GME derivatives: here. Notice how they hold some of the biggest positions, net short. They got 50,000 shares btw too. This isn't a new thing, they've held net short for at least a year: see this.

Also, another quick note about Susquehanna which I'm not HIV positive has been brought up yet: they are approved thus do what's called 'Delta Hedge Exemption'.

Maybe this is common for market makers, maybe it isn't, but what I'm guessing isn't common for most market makers is that violating the rules of this exemption (and the rule itself before there was an exemption) is a near 40 year long hobby of "theirs" (Jeff Yass' specifically, their founder). Here's Jeff Yass' earliest violations: here. Here's some of their latest: here (look at the number of find results!). Notice anything similar?

Here's a nice lil' summary from CBOE on Susquehanna's recent violations on their exchanges: here

So to summarize the last half of this post: a NYSE Certified Self Regulated Organization routinely violates the same rule again and again going back 39 years when their founder first entered the market-making game.

TL;DR: I finally remembered this section!