

Title: The Way

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2021-08-15 16:12:15 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/p4wcro/the_way/

Url: /r/Superstonk/comments/p4vwkn/i_have_a_theory_as_to_why_outside_of_the_dd_we/

Is_self: False

Linked Post:

Body:

Hey Apes - this theory is literally just that. A theory. So take with a dash of salt.

I'll be operating with quite a bit of conjecture but this is after a critical assessment of the most relevant and important DD since Jan while also being intensely focused on the political/financial reactions that have taken place within the government and financial institutions. Additionally, applying the knowledge we've all gained throughout this saga to the political (NOT talking about sides) landscape using Occam's razor we may just be able to better understand why the US Government actually WANTS this to happen.

So, first off let's rewind history several decades and look at the general political landscape in the USA. In a country run by Capitalism, it has become common knowledge and a widely accepted truth that large private entities such as banks, financial institutions and corporations can and have often lobbied to influence political decisions in Government. Even though this practice has been criticized over the years, nothing has really been done to prevent this. In contrast to this, other countries have laws and limits in place that prevent how much a private entity can contribute thus limiting their degree of potential influence.

So in short- Government and politicians can be easily influenced to act in the interest of private institutions such as financial institutions and corporations because moneyz.

So, what does this matter?

Well when you step back and review what happens when the weight of power shifts from private companies controlling the political landscape as opposed to honest decisions being made by uninfluenced people, you can easily deduce the fact that the system became broken a long time ago. Government is no longer acting on behalf of the people, making decisions for the people... No, their nutsacks have been squeezed by private enterprise that has consistently steered policy and developments for the past several decades in a manner that benefits the corporations and pads the pockets of politicians. Don't believe me? Why is it getting harder and harder to live and grow in a first world country? Food, jobs, housing, all becoming increasingly difficult to acquire for reasonable cost. (Yes other factors influence these as well)

So in short - Clearly no is working for you. Just a bunch of suits pretending to.

Now, how does this apply to MOASS and GME you ask?

Well for argument sake, let's assume there are still a large number of good people working in Government that simply don't "fight the good fight" because it's an uphill battle that would last for an eternity...

Hell, let's even just assume it's a few people that are in the right places.

Now let's create a scenario where something massive happened like a certain stock was shorted to oblivion several times over while a bunch of Apes decided to - worldwide - buy that same stock several times over which made it impossible for several large financial institutions to close their short positions without causing a nation wide financial implosion.

Well it looks like the nutsack squeeze of power that private institutions had over government to do their bidding just entered into a massive game of role reversal, if you will. Uno anyone?

Now good old Uncle Sam is watching the institutions start to sweat and squirm.

And Uncle Sam is tired of getting fucked. Uncle Sam has parts of him that know he must do good.

Enter Gary. Fucking. Gensler.

Gary sees the tables have turned and the USA is in a disastrous dilemma right now that has been precipitated by the same fuckbags that have been bending over the good old U S of A for the past 50 years or more. Gary knows what's going on, Gary has extensive knowledge in crypto, banks, politics, etc. Gary knows the oversight of the SEC has done next to nothing to remedy the actual problems over the years and is literally there for nothing more than public optics that create the illusion of punishment for use of the secret ingredient... crime

But Gary knows for the first time in history, hundreds of thousands of hard working people that actually make the world go round, have stumbled on to NOT JUST the fuckery that occurs in Wall St and government... But HOW THE FUCKERY OCCURS.

And you fucking Apes backed these discoveries with solid peer reviewed DD after DD. The absolute massive influx of eyes that have now fallen upon these criminals and their nefarious deeds is like pouring gas on the match.

We forced their hand because we did their jobs for them which makes Gary's job easier because he can't be coerced into staying silent when a bunch of tenacious apes are out there shaking DD bananas out of trees on a daily basis. We are the back-up someone like Gary needed to drive this whole thing home.

BUT WHY? you ask? Well, sorry I took so long to get there but the answer is simple...

Power.

For the first time in recent history The Scales of Power can now be tipped back into the actual Government instead of corporations, financial institutions and other private entities getting to steer the ship. A revolutionary shift can now occur due to the circumstances that are already set in motion. My belief is many decent people in Government have been WAITING FOR THEIR OWN CATALYST to have an opportunity to flip the system on its head.

Who has been making the rules? Your elected officials? Hahaha, fuck no. Wall Street. Who has been generating the policies? Wall Street. Who has been making it harder for you to get by? Wall Street. The tentacles of Wall Street slither and penetrate through the countless networks and circles of people that should be working for you, but aren't.

Thus, if you regulate Wall Street more, and limit the use of their secret ingredient and fuckery, while forcing a level of oversight that provides a greater degree of intimidation and compliance or risk severe consequences, then you have effectively neutralized a massive tool these entities use in their bid to spread their influence and corruption.

The United States of America may finally be realizing if their people are consistently the victimized by the the wealthiest criminals who consistently seek out ways to force people into parting with their own money... The American people could one day be in a potentially dire situation, nationwide. And that doesn't benefit anyone. The Government for many years now, has no longer been the one in power, running the country. It's these powerhouse institutions pulling all the strings.

And I think there are enough people out there that are realizing or have realized this simply can't continue. It's unsustainable for the American people and the effects are beginning to show in the world around us. With the scales tipped, and the roles reversed, America can begin to take back some of its power.

This isn't often talked about in this way here but I genuinely believe this is a huge part of WHY people like Gary are legitimately pursuing change.

Will it make a perfect system when the dust settles? No. It will never be perfect.

But will Uncle Sam stop being a little bitch for the banks and rich dicks who have been bending his people over decades, and finally give himself the opportunity needed to dust himself off and fight back?

I think so.

I hope so.

<3 You Apes.

*TLDR/Edit: I just wanted to add for clarity - The US Government redistributing power by way of limiting Wall Street influence does not necessarily equate to rainbows and butterflies for all. The government can still operate poorly and dysfunctionally on it's own, even with less Wall Street - but this theory is meant to illustrate that taking power back is ALL THE MOTIVATION THEY NEED. Because in the minds of them, Uncle Sam should be the power. Not Private Corps and Wall Street. What they do after this is anyone's guess.