So I believe one of the reasons y GME has not left the atmosphere. My opinion is you have created too many sites. Now I have to go looking for posts in GameStop. Before open Reddit and it was their front and center. Now WSB is all BBBY, and other meme stocks to the moon. This has opened way to many questions. Before was all GME. With all of these other sites we are now all over the place. And you can't comment unless you have 2500 ? That's ridiculous. Every time I've gotten closer to being able to comment they raise it. I'm 50 years old and one thing I know for sure I can always learn from other people. And when you start isolating people that are smarter and you don't get the full effect. So worried about people downplaying stocks you forgot that people with low karma can still add to the DD. Before all these new sites gme went from 40 to 150 with no problem now can't even get past 45. I think need to go back to what worked. Seems like everyone people try to fix things that are working end up screwing up. I'm not smart enough to know anything just my personal opinion. Let's go
