

Title: World Economic Forum is talking about GameStop and trying to convey $19B losses shorting a co with a $285M Market a cap at the time is normal. Literally confirming superstonk DD.

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2022-09-10 16:51:30 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/xau2vo/world_economic_forum_is_talking_about_gamestop/

Url: <https://i.redd.it/naqqlo08i1n91.jpg>

Who wins and loses from meme stock investing?

Investors have won and lost millions in the meme stock craze.

Meme stock losers include consumers who buy into meme stocks at their peak, only to see them fall, The Balance notes.

Other losers have included hedge firms – investment firms who use strategies including betting on share prices falling. These firms lost about $19 billion when GameStop shares rose, Insider magazine reported.