The whole process took me about 1 hour. Lots of waiting. Why?

My guess is that most employees are not trained yet. The first two people who I spoke to had no clue what I was talking about. One of the guys I talked to even discouraged me out of ignorance. How is it that retail is finding out what DRS means but employees do not??

It is possible that the system has been designed in a way for retailers to buy shares and assume ownership. They do not want millions of people to know DRS.

ASK FOR A SUPERVISOR. You are asking for a DRS transfer for Gamestop. You are transferring a certificate of ownership on Gamestop's books from the DTC to yourself*

The supervisor knew exactly what I was talking about. I personally transferred 30% of my Gme. But even he was not sure if gme was eligible to be transferred. (Its $500 if the security you are trying to transfer is not eligible) Gme is indeed eligible.

By the end of next week, every freaking Etrade employee should know how to do a DRS transfer, without asking for a supervisor. I am curious to read other apes' experiences with transferring.

GET OFF YOUR ASS AND TRANSFER. WE are the catalyst. This really fuks things up for them.

TLDR: Retail is the cataylst - we are the way. Buy, Hodl and DRS

*Edit 1: Saw a criand comment that I thought was great "You're not exactly transferring a share. You're transferring a certificate of ownership on gamestop's books from the DTC to yourself"
