Securities with increased margin requirements and trading strategy limits The following securities have additional requirements in place, and we will not be extending margin credit on some trading strategies. This is part of our normal course of business in situations of unusual volatility. You may continue to place buy and sell stock orders. This list is as of January 5, 2022, 10:00 AM EST. All stocks are marginable (requirement = 100%).

Symbols: GME Short selling of stock is not allowed at this time. There are no additional requirements on long or short options at this time. We may implement additional requirements on opening trades on options the day they expire.

Symbols: (movie stock) We may also implement additional requirements on opening trades on options that expire.

Please keep in mind that additional security and strategy requirements can be added and may change at any time, without notice due to volatility or other market conditions.
