I currently have CS, ETrade, TD (roth/conventional), Fidelity and Vanguard. I don't trust brokers for obvious reasons. I have had no issues transferring from ETrade to Fidelity but my latest attempt was cancelled by ETrade for "insufficient funds". What?!?!? Not once was this ever mentioned before and now their support team is a ghost town. I have 200+ GME shares in that account waiting to be DRSD. Anyone know an alternative way to get a hold of these crooks? I've called (not available), live chat (unavailable), email (kick back) and went to a local shop and... you guessed it, closed down. Not sure if this makes me happy... or extremely upset. Once this pops... the brokers will sell your shares at a price they seem fit. Don't allow that to happen... not financial advice.. but absolutely a suggestion.
