Counterpoint to this sticky:

I understand why we are seeing this increasing trend of Sears/Blockbuster/Amazon posts and honestly I can't blame you. Here is the issue however. The vast majority of these are super low effort screenshots like "WUT DOING SEARS?" with pictures of the same tickers.

Understand that not only is this creating a snowball effect but its completely clogging the forum and you are actively preventing potentially valuable content from reaching the Apes. We are here to talk about GME and it seems like these stocks could indeed be related. We are here because some wrinkly apes have spent tons of time researching and connecting dots. I know you just want to participate and do your part but its creating a major problem. Not only are most of these posts blatantly violating the rules but every single shitpost like this prevents good posts from rising.

If you are going to put effort in and are furthering the conversation, FANTASTIC! If you are just hopping on a trend for that sweet karma you are NOT helping. We are going to be very aggressive for a while in our moderation until this is under control. Please make room for the DD writers and high effort posters. Please report posts that are clogging the forum. Please understand we don't want to have to do this but right now there is no other option.

I know i'm gonna get heat for this and a lot of people are gonna complain. We aren't taking punitive action against the majority of posters. We get that you are just having fun but know if you circumvent these removals, if you literally spam or if you are encouraging people to buy into other "squeezes" you are gonna catch a ban. I honestly believe this is mostly organic. We are not trying to stifle discussion we are trying to make room for constructive discussion. Please follow the rules and play nice apes.

EDIT: Thank you everyone for the great feedback on this. We have some creative solutions we are working on this weekend and will hopefully update you all soon.
