Seeing how quickly our defense that is usually formidable and unrelenting start to crumble because Apes can't let go of their affiliations with one party or the other made me worried for our future as Apes and as a society. If any Ape can look at the DD and TA and the other piles of pure FUCKERY and CRIME knowing they are just some schmuck reading shit online and not realize that the people they hold so high mentally who are plugged in so to speak are not running through the streets screaming the truth. They are complicit in the crime themselves. If you stand witness to the rape of humankind and all its resources and gains from its sweat, blood and tears without calling bullshit loudly and publicly.... you might as well be the rapist. I hope most comments were bots because if we're going to let some arcaic status quo like political affiliations blind Apes to the fact that ALL elected officials that are not completely up in arms about the crime and rape of our financial system and retail investors the world over are our enemies.

You have seen the crime. The recent China IPOs are just the most recent domino in a string of dominos for God knows how long. Most of us are worked to the bone but we made ourselves aware. In my opinion if you work for the the people of America by elected office or federal/state employment and your not making a horrible racket about the injustice of the utter bullshit that has transpired you must as well be on their side.

If for one second you want to say "Well my side is trying to at least do XYZ" or anything else besides acknowledging we need to rewrite the whole system then I am shocked that with all you have beared witness too you would not see the forest for the trees. I highly doubt any Ape can not sit at a table and agree on completely reasonable things without putting labels on them. Such as Fair financial practices and accountability, Fair labor practices, freedom of choice, equal taxation that makes sense ( my example would be low 1-2% for your first 30k and under then 3-4% for your next 30-60k and so on). Quality and affordable housing, food Education,retirement and Healthcare available to all under humane/ethical standards. I don't care what one side has done or said good or bad. I dont care if one is deemed worse than the other. It's all made up. It's all another tool in the box to control you. Point you in a direction. One that doesn't lead you to their high rise condo or seaside villa. It leads you next door and leaves you thinking your only living in hell because Steve wants to own. Ar-15s or maybe it's the gay lady with short hair. We all want saftey, happiness and prosperity. Freedom. No matter what background an Ape has I believe they want those things.

Our dream of Freedom and prosperity has been taken from us. A citizen could clock in and out as a janitor if they so please for 40 years and be able to provide for a family and enough left over for prosperity of their children as well like better education, funding their entrepreneurial endeavors or even just making it so your child only needs to punch in for 30 to retire. You would have dignity in your final years after contributing to society for your life. We are trading minutes that we luckily have either because God exists or star dust formed just right but either way they are precious minutes that we will never get back or be able to stretch. That should fucking count for something. The fact anyone can work 40 hrs a week and not live completely comfortably ALONE in America is disgusting and makes me ashamed and hate everyday being a cog of that system.

Ape/Mankind together strong. Ape/Mankind divided weak. Long live Gamestop. Power to the Players!
