Can someone with a TD Ameritrade account please try to see if you can put in a GTC sell limit order for over $330? Of course cancel it right after. I was trying to see if I could put in a sell limit order of $500,000 for one share and a message popped up stating the sell price was too high above the share price and would not move to an open order. I kept reducing the sell price till I got the same error message all the way down to $300. At $300, I got a different pop up message. This one stated that I am restricted from reducing my shares of this symbol. I can not place a limit sell on GME! I am able to place sell limit order on all my other tickers in my account. Also, I cannot screenshot the message as it disappears when I attempt to. Can TD apes look into this?
