Hello. I'm in the process of selling and rebuying to get out of a shitty broker. 50% of my shares are in limbo atm (t+2 and then ~5 days to buy with CS), so if the price surges next week, which Ryan Cohen's weewee usually indicates, I'll lose a fuckload of shares. How do I cope with the loss? I don't know what to do guys. I bought the vast majority of my shares before we knew about CS, using money I had been saving for years. Then, my broker wouldn't DRS, and people kept telling me that selling and rebuying would help the shorters, so I didn't. But now, everyone is saying it's the only sensible thing to do, and I sold last friday at 117. I thought the price would keep falling, as some apes have predicted, but then RC made his penis tweet, and now I feel like I made a big mistake. Someone please talk to me :(
