So this theory all could be the crayons I ate as a child, or the fact that I'm running on 0 sleep for 2 straight days because I just had twins. BUT.... What if GMERICA NFT = Registered shares

Stay with me...

NFTs by themselves are inherently worthless. The NFT isn't just a JPG that can be copy pasted, it's a "map" that proves that what it leads to is authentic. So the value isn't in the NFT itself, it's what they're leading to that is of value, for instance an authenticated share of a company in the real world.

DRSd shares (or share authenticated by CS) are qualified real, you get a GMERICA NFT for each, those that aren't authenticated (i.e. synthetics) aren't backed able to be backed by the GMERICA NFT and are exposed for being fake resulting in them being worthless. Rush for NFT backed shares ensue, Hedgies who are short are scrambling to get their hands on the real things to cover, as this is happening buying pressure goes through the roof, no one is selling. Value of "real" shares skyrocket causing the value of the NFTs to skyrocket in conjunction. Hedgies can't cover 1) because they don't have the money to buy real shares, and 2) because they have no way of creating more synthetics. They can't fake an Authentic NFT backed GME share. The NFTs act as the bridge between the GMERICA universe and marketplace and a "new" currency that can be used in a "metaverse" setting.

RC and GME made the splivind happen because it made it physically impossible for Hedgies to cover/buy back authentic shares in time. It was the final trap closing the Hedgies/shorts in while rewarding their investors potentially millions of times over.

This aligns with the wallets that may have just been created out of thin air, and the "injected" portion that people haven't been seeing on existing wallets. GME is getting ready to link their shares to the Blockchain to prove they're real.

GG. Power to the players.
