

Title: Ethereum just pulled off its final test run ahead of one of the most important events in crypto
Author: disoriented_llama
Created 2022-08-11 12:59:23 UTC
Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/wlqsqe/ethereum_just_pulled_off_its_final_test_run_ahead/
Url: /r/marketpredictors/comments/wlpjas/ethereum_just_pulled_off_its_final_test_run_ahead/

Linked Post Content:

With the Goerli merge going successfully, there is growing confidence that there will be no further delays to the Ethereum Merge set for mid-September.

After Ropsten and Sepolia, Goerli was the last remaining testnet scheduled to undergo the Merge, officially becoming a proof-of-stake (PoS) blockchain as of 1:45 am UTC, Aug. 11.

The Goerli testnet merge has been finalized without any major issues today, suggesting that there will be no delays to the tentative Ethereum Merge date set for Sept. 19.

Numerous key devs and figures in the Ethereum ecosystem have taken to Twitter to share their enthusiasm over the successful merge, such as core dev Preston Van Loon and podcaster/ETH proponent Anthony Sassano, sassal0x on Twitter, who bullishly noted to his 216,400 followers that “next up is (finally) the Ethereum mainnet!! The Merge is coming.” mint tokens. It uses far less power and is expected to translate into faster transactions.

Read the full article: <https://cointelegraph.com/news/sept-19-ethereum-merge-date-on-track-as-goerli-test-merge-successfully-finalized>

The Ethereum 2.0 (ETH) is now almost within reach, as the Goerli testnet, the final test run before the ETH merge, has been successful. The ETH 2.0, billed as one of the most significant upgrade in the crypto history is set to happen on September 19.

Do you think ETH 2.0 can topple Bitcoin (BTC) as the new crypto king?