The algorithm buys on good news and short on negative . It's fully automated . It shorts and buy faster than a human could . That's why you would see more buys but the price wouldn't go up on some stocks . They are constantly buying and selling repeatedly faster than retailers . A cheap trick . However sometimes the algorithm do things it not suppose to do or can't tell the difference of which stock not to buy. And this is a costly downside in the Algorithm Hedge Fund uses. The news of Gme NFTs market triggered a massive buy order . Thus causing retailers to buy and shorts to start covering . A snow ball effect is forming . 30% movement upwards is very dangerous for shorts . Here is why. If the price was to go down to its original price . The attention Gme has of being highly and illegally shorted will only increase. ThT is absolutely the last thing Hedge funds want especially since they are under investigation with illegal activities regarding GME . Most the shares that were purchased after hours were not even placed on the market . It was just filled in your account m and will be fill on open tmr. Where the volatility can see Gme going to new highs. Happy Trading tmr .
