Ryan cohen selling bby and the cfo jumping out of a building have rattled me

The persistent lack of transparency from gme like todays earnings call worries me

Wont we see a dilution at this rate we'll before the drs float?

And on the matter of drs, I've never sold drs shares, won't that process take days? Or at the very least hours especially with the volume involved.

In which case the hedge funds will have plenty of time to sell.

I'm on the ape team but I must be missing some info, would appreciate some solid info on these concerns. I can only seem to find extreme polarization of gme = moon or gme = lies.
