I tried posting this on another subreddit earlier but it looks like I screwed it up somehow and it didn't seem to go through ■ A while back I made a chart of GameStop's float and short interest based on data I collect. I thought it would be interesting to update it again now that we are at the one year anniversary of the famous short squeeze. You can see that the reported float seems to have stabilized a bit, but Yahoo Finance reported some odd numbers back in September (see the values in red). That drew a lot of commentary here on Reddit, but I still never figured out if that was anything more than a temporary glitch. Anyway, I hope this is of interest to followers of GME.
