I have been a long time lurker and I just like the stock without really posting anything. Lately I have noticed that there is a really good sale on gme, like the best sale in almost a whole year, but have also been seeing more and more negative sentiment regarding the stonk on a certain part of Reddit. That got me thinking that maybe the hedgefucks are scared of apes buying and are posting fud because they know that there is a nice sale going on. They are more scared now than they have been since last January. All I wanted to make this post for is to say that seeing this negative sentiment is the best confirmation bias I have seen in a long time and my tits are now more jacked than they have been since last January.
