

Title: Can we rationally discuss the recent news about layoffs and stock dividend?

Author: TheCaptainCog

Created 2022-07-08 16:11:29 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/vuebgp/can_we_rationally_discuss_the_recent_news_about/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/vuebgp/can\_we\_rationally\_discuss\_the\_recent\_news\_about/

To my knowledge, even if it's corporate, lay-offs usually aren't a good thing. Stock split dividends are also usually used when the company doesn't have underlying capital to issue a cash dividend.

The other GME based subreddits jerk off to any news good or bad, while all other stock subreddits shit on GME good or bad news. I think this is the oy subreddit that's less biased either way (although definitely a skew towards GME positive).

So, what does everyone think about the news?