So been here since basically the beginning and what I gather from everything that I've learned is that Hedgies and MMs basically control the entire narrative, is that right?

*They essentially decide the price we pay per share (best execution for themselves),

*They have all our info so with that they have the ability to bet against us.

*They control whether to place our orders on the lit Market or in the dark pool, to swing the price in their favor.

*They control whether options remain in the money by driving the price down in order to render them worthless even though they sold them to you in the first place?

*They short companies to the point of bankruptcy continuously scooping up our invested dollars.

And we simply have no ability to fight back except to DRS and to complain to a useless, hand-tied agency who may or may not fine them and then may or may not collect those fines?

And restitution is not on the table for folks who are being robbed blind? Instead that useless hand-tied agency that fines them gets to keep the fine money? And this is not only happening to GME?

Okay, so what's our game plan then other than holding and watching our money dwindle to nothing on a daily basis. And this is not fud man, I'm seriously asking what our actual plan is because you all know that congress and every other government agency would have to be in bed with these bastards to get away with all of the above. And they are getting away with it. I mean if Ryan and Elon can't stop these shit heads then we need a plan. A really solid plan and giving up all our DD and intelligence on this platform is not real bright. So let's really make an important move. Any suggestions?
