

Title: What good is the SEC really doing? How can they stand by and simply watch the rampant abuse and insane levels of naked shorting? Wat doin Gary?

Author: ddt70

Created 2021-09-06 09:23:42 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/piw1fr/what_good_is_the_sec_really_doing_how_can_they/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/piw1fr/what_good_is_the_sec_really_doing_how_can_they/

In previous posts I have asked about the share count from the AGM and why that wasn't made public, only to be told that it is confidential information given an ongoing SEC investigation.

OK, so there's little we can move on that one....however....if there was evidence of massive naked shorting, and the terrible implications of the cost to the US taxpayer at the end of it all, why hasn't the SEC implemented a temporary halt on shorting by the SHFs and MMs, until the investigation has been completed?

It seems to me that in other areas of life, any 'suspicious' activity that is being questioned, can be halted, until such time as the true legal position can be established....so why not here....and especially here given the gravity of the situation?