First off im 95% drs with xxx GME shares with them already but i Saw a post a few days ago trying to rally more apes to DRS and the narrative used was other brokers will fuck us with taking away the buy button again, wont answer calls, internet going out, electrical issues preventing this or that etc etc my question is. What gives us so much confidence that computershare wont have "issues" when moass starts? Can they trully handle the massive volume from apes trying to sell? What stops hedge funds from hiring a crackhead to burn the building down?... idk.. now that im done writing this it totally feels like im spreading hella FUD haha so if i get hella downvoted I'll delete the post but just thought I'd give it a shot and see why so many have such blind trust.
