Full Disclosure: This is not me, this is from a user from months ago and I use it as "OI' Reliable" and am in no way, shape, or form saying that I have, or will sell. I am not promoting RobinHood or paper trading in any way. This is a mere reminder of the time transactions went through that were not supposed to and for a moment in time, the price was right (behind closed doors of the dark pool). This was a year ago before the extreme amount of FTDs and max pain hit nearly every week. I could only imagine the amount of pressure in that can of worms. All I know is DRS is the way and this price shown in the image was how much they were willing to pay for even a fraction of a real, DRSeD share. If your shares were in a brokerage that day they were worth $483.00 max, in Computershare, $5,124.48 per share **minimum**. Since then the ownership has increased drastically on a **daily basis** by apes, institutional investors, and board members. Gamestop will go to the moon and when it does those shares and that money will be nowhere near any platform but Computershare just like where Ryan Cohens confidently sit.
