Today was a very odd day as far as how the stock moved today. Normally we see it get pummeled in the morning and slowly climb back but never actually moving smoothly.

Today was weird though. It opened with a big green shrek dick that ended just after 10 am hitting 215 and bouncing down to 208 only to come back to 214. Then we see it just slow die until eod where it ended at 206...

So what explains todays movement? And please please please don't say fuckery or crime. I want to understand the technicals to why it jumped only to end a few bucks up. It was completely different from their typical scripted day. Algos changing?

We still have til tomorrow according to the pomeranian as far as rolls so maybe we some big movement tomorrow? If mods think this isn't a necessary topic or can point to me where I can find daily TA that would be awesome! Discuss..
