Stop the Presses.

Reached out to CES Online Services.

CES provides independent tabulation and inspector of election services to private and public companies, mutual funds, associations, retirement systems and cooperatives. Our philosophy is simple: we find out what a client wants, then we adapt our procedures to meet those needs.

Gamestop is using them for tabulating our votes and www.cesonlineservices.com belongs to them.

We went through the Gamestop Proxy Statement on the phone. Compared his Gamestop proxy statement and mine.

Key points and process.

Lots of good information

1.What we have received from our brokers are voting instructions, it is not a Legal Proxy!

2. For Beneficial Owners: It is either or. You EITHER vote in advance using the voting instructions from your broker through your broker's website, etc; OR you request the "Legal Proxy" from your broker because you will be attending the shareholder's meeting and vote during the meeting.

2. By requesting the "Legal Proxy" from the brokers, it essentially transfers and gives you the right to attend the meeting in person (or virtually) and that form or letter will authorize you to cast your ballot at the time of the meeting.

Request the "Legal Proxy" from the broker because " you will be attending the meeting" and voting the broker shares at the meeting. I received a reference number for the service request. According to the agent, it should take 1 day to receive the "Legal Proxy".
