

Title: Got a big question for anyone

Author: Greifvogel1993

Created 2022-04-18 14:37:33 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/u6ens7/got_a_big_question_for_anyone/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/u6ens7/got_a_big_question_for_anyone/

I understand the math, I understand the concepts, I understand COMPLETELY what is surrounding our GameStop situation. My only question is, how do we know that anyone outside of these forums will play fair? !How do we know they will let the computers run and close short positions during the margin calls? How do we know they won't shut the whole thing down?!

"Because that would ruin trust in our market" -What trust? These guys know our current system is headed toward catastrophic failure. Why maintain the trust in a system you know is failing?

"Untold capital gains taxes" -Again, our government and our financial sector know our current system is destined to fail, the dollar could be worthless by the time these capital gains taxes have been rounded up.

This is NOT meant to be FUD, I trust all of us to HODL through the moon launch, and I am as financially committed as my current bills and income allow me to, but I have literally zero trust in them letting the price run.

I am a simple dude. I am not smart. I have no real talents. I have nothing to give to anyone. Fame and fortune are not in my future. Love is not in my future, I don't have the capacity to be an equal partner to something like that. All I have in my life now is just patiently waiting to say "I told you so" when this house of cards falls. I buy. I DRS. I hodl. It's just getting hard to convince myself that the goliath we are fighting is going to just let this thing rip like we want it to. How do we know they won't just pull the plug and shut the whole game off once we start winning?