They wanted me to call back for more information. I was curious so I did, and at first they said I had them as a dividend from GME. I corrected them saying that they were leftover from DRSing all my whole shares. So they said that was correct and it was a mistake. After looking more into it they found a note on my account that they called to let me know I could sell my fractional shares. No thanks, I will hodl them! They don't know why the representative would call to tell me to sell them... anyone else get a call like that?
