So I'm sitting here at work, staring at the wall, thinking about GME. And I can't help to wonder.... Why were the T+35 FTDs not delivered yesterday? THERE WERE 1.6 million of them. Looking at the volume there is no possible way they were purchased...

So I got to thinking. End of month is today. Margin calls tomorrow. Supposedly. If I'm bankrupt, and I know I'm bankrupt, and my death is tomorrow, why would I need to do anything today? I just stop trying and say whoops and I lose my job and I might as well start drinking cuz I can't afford cocaine anymore and maybe I'll go visit the dumpster behind wendys cuz my wife is leaving me and no one will give me a job because all my friends lost their jobs on the same day too and are with me eating 3 day old sun mayo behind the dumpster.

So. Yeah. TLDR(S): maybe we are about to explode in reality... and in our pants.

You are all invited to my pants party, cuz I don't wear shorts, and should never be trusted for financial advice.
