

Title: At what point do we face reality that this community is bigger than GME and take actual action TOGETHER?

Author: Djamgreen

Created 2022-07-14 20:05:28 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/vz501v/at_what_point_do_we_face_reality_that_this/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/vz501v/at_what_point_do_we_face_reality_that_this/

Everyone here knows. The scale of this saga you're directly involved in really can't be overstated. The evidence is too overwhelming for any rational person to ignore. It's been years now. Years of cohesive, coordinated misinformation and financial trickery from the unified front of big business, big media and big government. GameStop is indisputably the target of global financial corruption. We all know that fact with the utmost certainty. We know the very same institutions and actors have been found to be responsible for knowingly participating in the destabilization of the global economy, repeatedly. We know they'd sooner watch the world burn into nothing than lose. We are literally talking about the single most corrupt, wealthy, powerful and entangled group of individuals and institutions imaginable. We know the devastating impact these corrupt organizations like Blackrock and Citidel has had on GameStop and other targets. We know the impact this has on the larger global market. They knowingly destabilize every facet of human life to increase their profits. We know the impact this has on the structures of power that are bought and paid for. We know the devastating impact this has on individuals helpless to the whims of these actors. We know that we are facing some of the most vile human beings on earth. People who hold no allegiance to nations, or leadership or their fellow citizens. They operate solely to exploit the system and amass wealth and power. With the DD and amazing research done here we've essentially exposed the true mechanisms of global corruption. It's great we can see the split coming and always good to have a light at the end of the tunnel, but even IF these institutions are crippled by this incident we all know the game won't change unless we force it too. We all have a far more powerful asset than the stonk, other apes. We have a community of hundreds of thousands of reasonably well informed citizens that have legitimate outrage and evidence of the perpetrators of monumental crimes. Yes, DRS is the way. Yes, patience is a virtue. Yes, I believe in this movement. Yes, I'm all for becoming wealthy. But if we use the true strength that we have created here we possess the numbers to enact tangible change in the world. It is still our right to organize, it is still our right to protest, it is still our right to dissent. If we believe any of the information gathered here over the years I feel it is our duty to leave our echo chamber and bring that truth to the world. Hard. The idea that we can just coast and hold our way to victory is mind-blowingly naive. They have illustrated unequivocally, that they are incapable of self-regulation. Even IF we achieve success for this specific stonk, the ONLY realistic way this system will change is if someone actually forces them to. And in this smooth brained opinion we might be in the best position to do just that. Demand reform. Demand action. We have way more power than they want us to know. 10k informed people can make waves, 100k can move mountains. POWER TO THE PLAYERS! ■