

Title: Only 2 Outcomes, unless Ryan Cohen does his thing-you know the unannounced moves he does so well, the end of the US financial system, the dollar, and trust in the Government or the bad bet pays off and the Apes win!

After chatting with u/millertime1216, who gave me an award back in the days of the OG Apes, he recommended that I share something with y'all. So here goes:

When I share the saga of GameStop with folks, I usually tell them that there are only 2 possible outcomes. I know this is a limited view and I truly understand that there could be more than 2 outcomes. As we all know, Ryan Cohen doesn't exactly forecast his moves.

1st Outcome, the US financial system is destroyed, along with the dollar, subsequently all the millionaires and billionaires, and the trust in the US Government as a whole, especially the DOJ.

2nd Outcome, the bad bet is honored and the Apes receive their dues.

You may ask why I see these two outcomes and which one is the only possibility. Well not every billionaire is currently short GME, take Pulte for example. If the top 1% destroy the value of the dollar, the game is truly over, and they are left almost as poor as the Apes. I'm sure they have some assets that will retain value, but not much value in a destroyed US financial system. So the only real outcome is that they pay us. The whole world is watching and anyone caught with their head in the sand or still holding onto to trust in the Government's DOJ will be left behind. I'm sure where it originates, but it is a fact. We no longer have a justice system, we have just a system.

I am not a financial advisor, I am 100% GME - DRS'd of course, minus a tiny fractional share (0.0026) at FUDelity. I will hold the line...remember BUY, HODL, DRS!!!
