I use Etrade to manage part of my portfolio, and I throw their widget on my phone screen to keep an eye on things.

Right about the time the market started going up yesterday, I noticed that the widget stopped working and was showing the NASDAQ at +0. I thought it was odd, but didn't look that far into it. It was still not working today, so I logged into Etrade to open my watch list inside the account. I don't own all of these stocks, but I watch them as indicators. During the day, I have multiple open tabs to Yahoo Finance to watch pricing, and I noticed two meme stocks(GME+one) on this list were showing they were down much more than the current price on YF. It appears they were still using yesterday's open price?

But that's not all... I also follow the bottom one (aluminum producer) and ...well, you can check the charts for yourself... it was over $60/sh at the time I took this screen capture. The other three on the top appear to be correct.

Also, if anyone wants to explain how I can cross post things to both subs, thanks in advance...
