After reading a few comments on some post, I was very disheartened. I noticed people in the comment section stating they don't see gme getting to the millions and that 10k would be a win. I've been seeing comments like this more and more. What the hell is happening in this sub. What happened to $95 million floor? What happened to holding for the baby apes with less then 10 shares? 10k a share won't be life changing money for the people with less shares. Maybe their shitadel spies leaving those comments, but when I don't see any apes calling them out it gets me thinking. I don't know about you apes but I ain't selling any shares untill 500 thousand which at that point i will sell 5 shares. Then I will hold the rest untill 1.5 million. I want honest answers, what is your price point you planning on Selling at? By the way am just an xx holder.
