Happy Sunday Apes!

Did we just get our pre-moass 741 tweet????

Since February, after I jumped into the economy world thanks to my favorite stonk, I've been closely following news and data like a hawk (unhealthy amounts at time). But that's what watching grand corruption on a global scale will do to you.

Anyways, on to the fun deep dive. So last week I found a very interesting point made by our boy GG in the congressional hearing where he talked about whiskey barrels. Yes I said that. WHISKEY barrels.

As a boomer, I am incapable of uploading this video coherently from my phone, but the link is the testimony and an interesting discussion between Wyoming senator and GG takes place. Fast forward to 47:01 for the interaction.

TLDW: they discuss interesting crypto stuff and investment contracts associated with it.

OK Back to the discussion. So here we have a tweet by our boy RC wanting to buy some whiskey and GG talking about whiskey barrels and investment contracts. So what is this whiskey barrel nonsense?

Did you know you can invest in whiskey barrels? Well apparently the SEC rules these as "investment contracts" since 1973. Wild I know. They are actual physical assets that you can get dividends from, increases in value, and a safety spot for money away from the rest of the market.

Hmm... if I were about to witness an upheaval of the stock market due to all that fun grand corruption occurring around us wouldn't it be nice if we had a safe haven away from that and the subsequent fall out? How about a safe and secure NFT on a fantastical layer 2 ethereum network that becomes the nexus for the entire metaverse or Web 3.0 reinvention? Buy and hold. Not financial advice. I just like the stock.
