Could an individual investor request the DRS count from GameStop. Or, could an individual create a petition request to have this done? It's my understanding that there's a rule that says GameStop shouldn't suggest individual DRS their shares (like CMKM diamonds did). However, could an individual simply ask GameStop to provide DRS count? If a shareholder was to initiate this request, what is the reason(s) that GameStop would or could not supply this information, as the request would be initiated by a shareholder? To be clear, GameStop would not be asking or initially offering to supply DRS count. Simply a shareholder exercises their right to ask and be provided that information?
