

Title: Friendly Neighborhood Strategist attempting to use checker skills to understand 4 D Chess

Author: JamesXSurvivor

Created 2021-09-09 17:09:17 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/pl20g2/friendly_neighborhood_strategist_attempting_to/

Url:

https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/pl20g2/friendly\_neighborhood\_strategist\_attempting\_to/

Needed a laptop for this, it is a doozy.

Now first off none of this is confirmed and SPECULATION only but I base it on human behavior and from what the market its doing and how our favorite strategist (Ryan Cohen) is doing.

First off Ryan bought shares back in the day (2020) and started sending letters to the board. Eventually he put his money where his mouth was and put a lot more money in January this year. If he were to look at getting the maximum amount of gains that he could cash some of it out, it would make sense that he would want the MOASS to starve off till January of next year. I personally don't mind, any short term gains of mine that par into long term is a huge tax break (rip uncle sam) but I digress.

Second notice, all the talk of GMERICA. What if all the talk about how he will conquer the video game industry is a waste? What if GameStop was the closest at conquering it and between better customer service, Esports training centers (just awesome marketing in my humble opinion to get gamers together), acknowledgement and catering to the CPU crowd and finally using the fabeled NFT to RESELL DOWNLOADED GAMES (yes i truly believe this is where hes going, turning their achilles heal to a world wide revenue generator) he has already won? Art of war, don't start a war unless you have already won. Quite frankly I'm mad at myself for not seeing it earlier.

From a personal standpoint imagine he has already beat Amazon in a niche market (Chewy). Doing it again isn't a challenge (as stated above), but you know what would be a real challenge? Taking on the king themselves Amazon? Amazon has never been weaker and it's market sentiment is falling ("thank you customers for sending me to space", stupid, stupid, stupid thing to say) and I hear his employees aren't thrilled with working there. This becomes our future.

What if GMERICA (not sure about the name but I'm so far behind with a bucket of crayons what do i know) is being built from GME? What does that mean to us? Simply check and see what IBM is doing. IBM is splitting its stock NOT into more IBM shares but into two companies that will equal the same value together as the stock. Can you imagine how many problems that solves?

No longer worried about crypto dividend (Overstock debacle), doesn't have to split his shares (he could but why?) and most importantly everything must be covered to acknowledge the new share. Plus any shorts that hold will send the costs of not only GME shares but the newly minted GMERICA shares through the roof?

Again, I'm far behind him and just started learning about the market some time in 2020 during pandemic so catching this smart cat has been rough.

But, with my limited brainpower, I would want to the do the exact above. All us gamers are going to be fucking thrilled with what GameStop turns into (that's the easy part). Going after and causing the death of Amazon (after we are finding out Amazon may of been a part of every retailers death spiral for years) that would be a great adventure.

Hope you all enjoyed the read, have ran this theory past a few others I know invested and they said share it as speculation.

DIAMOND HANNNDDSSS!!!!!!