

Title: Stock Dividend.

Author: Confident_Quote5709

Created 2022-04-30 17:49:15 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/ufg7hl/stock_dividend/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/ufg7hl/stock\_dividend/

Hello retards, how retarded are we today ?

I wanted to speak on some questions and see if i could attract some with enough wrinkles to offer some insightful information.

So as you may of heard by now (if not where the fuck have you been) on the 2nd of June the beloved company of GameStop will be holding the annual shareholders meeting to reveal the vote on wether the shareholders have approved the 1 billions shares to be issued so the company can go ahead with the dividend. The ratio of the dividend/split is not yet clear.

Before you say it. Yes i know they could issue the dividend without shareholder approval, save your co2.

Anyway so my questions may come of extremely smooth so bare with me. I will number my questions in order to keep everything smooth
(no pun intended ■)

1) If $GME does for exmaple a 7:1 split (in the form of a dividend) that would mean the price now $125 will go to $17.8. We all now this poor stock has been shorted ■ more than danny DeVito to bring the price lower, but wouldn't a price of $17 after the split be easier for the sharks to bring this bitch to $0 or if not $0, never let it reach the $100 range again ?

2) from my understanding the point of this split is that its more appealing to attract more buyers at a lower price point, hence more people buying and causing the price to go right back up. But if all orders are being routed through dark pools, how will the price go up even if a shit ton of people buy?

3) the company is asking for permission to bring the total shares from 300,000,000 to 1,000,000,000, isn't this the same as share dilution, if not what is the difference ?

4) do the shorts really have to deliver those dividends to shareholders? Coz bunch-a people are saying this.

5) will this split cause them to close ?

6) how bullish are you ?

Gracias.